HAS HELD HIGH PLACE ALWAYS

Turkey Long and Favorably Known for Its Delicious Edible Qualities.

WORSHIPED BY THE AZTECS

When Introduced Into England They Were Considered One of the Richest Items at a Banquet—Many Varieties of the Bird.

SENIOR DON TURKEY played a brilliant part in history even before the Spaniards discovered him, along with Mexico, in 1518.

Long before that he had been worshiped by Aztecs. Later, when his religious vogue was past, he was given place of honor at the marriage banquet of a king. So superior a viand was he considered when first introduced to Europe that in a "constitution" set forth by Cranmer in 1514 turkey is named as one of the greater fowls, of which an ecclesiastic was to "have but one in a dish." But he speedily multiplied to such an extent that no later than 1555 two turkeys and four turkey chicks were served at a feast of the sergeants-at-arms in London.

Turkeys at that period were mentioned in connection with cranes and swans as important and rich items of a banquet. A little later, in 1573, turkey were used on the tables of English husbands for the Christmas feast. In the meantime they were more than plentiful in their home land, where turkey continued to sell for about six cents apiece as late as the nineteenth century. For six cents in those good old days a turkey weighing about 12 pounds could be bought by a good shopper. If the family needed a turkey weighing 25 or 30 pounds it was necessary to pay as much as a quarter. But it must be remembered that six cents in those days counted a good deal more than it does in this.

Turkeys of Various Kinds.
The turkey that the Aztecs worshiped was probably either the Mexican wild turkey, which is known by the white touches on its tall coverts and quills, or, more appropriately, the ocellated turkey of Honduras and other parts of South America, whose brilliant plumage, spotted almost as gloriously with vivid colors as a peacock, somehow allies it particularly with that vivid early people. The turkey which strolled out of the forests of New England and furnished so marvelous a banquet for our Puritan forefathers was a handsomer bird than that of Mexico, in the opinion of some lovers of beauty, but not so brilliant as one as the Honduras turkey.

The American wild turkey, which really belongs to Thanksgiving, was the North American wild turkey found throughout the eastern United States and Canada. Scientifically it is known as the Meleagris Americana. Its plumage is black, shaded with bronze. In the rays of the sun the bird gleams in a beautiful harmony of black copper, gold and bronze. And the turkey likes the rays of the sun. He hates damp weather, not alone because it is bad for his health, but because it obscures his beauty.

It is generally believed at present that all the turkeys of the world have descended from the three forms known as the North American bird, which has just been described; the Mexican bird and the ocellated bird.

Credit May Belong to Spaniards.

The turkey which was first introduced into Europe may have been carried there by the Spaniards from Mexico or the Jesuits may have taken it back across the waters from one of their scattered stations in the great woods of Canada. In any event, one of its representatives figured at the marriage banquet of Charles IX and was regarded as of sufficient importance to be mentioned in the reports of that festivity.

The Mexican turkey is the wild bird of Mexico, which also came over the line into the southern part of the United States. Meleagris Gallopava is the name that is generally employed to describe this turkey. It is somewhat shorter in the shank than the northern species. Its body color is a metallic black, shaded with bronze. This is thought to be the species that the early navigators first bore back to Spain and England. The white tips of its plumage also have suggested that it is to this bird rather than to the wild turkey of North America that most of the domestic fowls owe their origin.

The ocellated turkey, Meleagris Ocellata, which is smaller than the others, has a bare head and neck. Its body plumage is bronze and green, banded with gold bronze and variegated with spots or eyes of brilliant colors—blue, red and brilliant black.

Why is a Turkey So Named?

Why the turkey is called the turkey when its origin is admittedly purely occidental is a subject that has puzzled many persons. There are several reasons given by those who have delved deeply into this problem, and one is privileged to take his choice. In the first place, it is stated that the turkey was originally supposed to have come from Asia. Thus at a time when a great stretch of territory on the Asiatic continent was called "Turkey" the bird derived its name from its supposed origin. Another speculative chronicler records that the Indians called the bird "turkie" and that from this its common name was created. Then, again, it is somewhat generally believed that the bird named itself by its peculiar utterances, which are still translated as "turk-turk-turkey." Again, still more subtle philosophers have traced the naming of the bird to its kinship in the matter of polygamous habits with the Turks, and there are other explanations.

The pilgrims were not so bad off in some ways as we have been led to imagine, for although they were deprived of the joys of tinned meats and vegetables and cold storage and similar blessings turkeys were so plentiful that it is recorded it was customary to refer to them as bread.

Another chronicler sets forth the fact that the breast of the wild turkey when cooked in butter was esteemed by even the epicures among the explorers. But in spite of their abundance turkeys were regarded with favor even by the red men, if one is to judge by the following prayer which they uttered:

"Oh great Being, I thank thee that I have obtained the use of my legs again so that I am able to walk about and kill turkeys."

Choose Thankfulness.

Thankfulness is not the inevitable result of certain conditions, but a matter of deliberate choice. It is a mistake to tell ourselves that we should be thankful if we possessed this or that, for possession has little or nothing to do with thankfulness.

Be thankful. Do not waste any time arguing whether or not you have any reason for it. Lift your heart to the Father of us all in reverent gratitude, and in the mere act of thankfulness you will realize your blessings as never before.
